the unique history of the micks the irish guards is chronicled in over 1000 images starting with their formation in 1900 and taking the reader through to the recent war in afghanistan it is the story of a remarkable family regiment that continues to enhance the values standards and reputation of the british infantry in an ever changing world the two world wars are covered in detail with dramatic pictures the first world war the brick stacks at cuinchy under fire where o leary won his vc and the second world war the inferno of the transport ship chobry off the coast of norway and the first ever german king tiger tank seen in action brought to a halt by the irish guards without firing a shot more recently the micks were involved in internal security duties in palestine cyprus malaya aden northern ireland and the balkans they led the way into iraq in the second gulf war and shed blood in afghanistan the book shows the development of regimental soldiering from the rigidity of the victorian era through the horrors of the trenches to armoured warfare in europe and light infantry soldiering worldwide all the time upholding the finest traditions of the foot guards in an army that prides itself on the strength of the regimental system the irish guards have created a distinctive and enduring ethos of their own this is not just a cold regimental history but has been compiled to show the micks ability to find humour even in the most adverse conditions while demonstrating excellence at both operational and ceremonial soldiering it also contains in an extensive set of appendices a remarkable record of facts about the regiment the people places and events in the history of the irish guards which will serve as an invaluable source of information for future generations the irish guards were raised in april 1900 under the authority of army order 77 of that month which stated her majesty the queen having deemed it desirable to commemorate the bravery shown by the irish regiments in the recent operations in south africa has been graciously pleased to command that an irish regiment of foot guards be formed this regiment will be designated the irish guards as the fourth regiment of foot guards the regiment has the buttons on the tunic in two groups of four and the plume on the bearskin cap is blue worn on the right the regimental march is st patrick s day and the slow march let erin remember when war broke out in august 1914 the 1st battalion there was only one battalion then was in wellington barracks london one of the four guards battalions that made up the 4th guards brigade 2nd infantry division the battalion landed in france on 13 august 1914 in july 1915 kitchener obtained the permission of the king to form a guards division an idea he had not shared with the war cabinet nor with the c in c in france as there were only ten battalions of guards at the time including the recently february 1915 formed welsh guards he gave orders for another grenadier and irish guards battalion to be raised to make up the required twelve battalions a fourth coldstream battalion was also formed as the divisional pioneer battalion thus on 18 july 1915 the 2nd battalion irish guards came into existence formed from the 2nd reserve battalion which itself had been created in august 1914 the author has followed the same pattern with both 1st 2nd battalions concentrating on the events that affected the battalions and making use of official and private records diaries and personal interviews with officers and men of the battalions the book teems with kipling s characteristic powers of description his meticulous eye for detail and his empathy with fighting men at their last extremity as he narrates the guards progress from mons to the armistice via the fighting at la bassee loos laventie ypres the somme gouzeaucourt and arras
